

Spring Curriculum Breakfast

Visible Learning and Leading Systems

Featuring

Dr. Michael McDowell
Superintendent, Ross School District

The most comprehensive research on influences that impact student achievement has been developed. Over the past decade, schools and school systems have applied the core messages and strategies of the Visible Learning research to ensure all students substantially progress in all school subjects. Specific approaches in personnel, governance, professional development, and community engagement have been deployed across systems to ensure significant student progress in every school and classroom.

Michael McDonald presents the research and strategies systems utilize to yield substantial system-wide impact on all children, and the leadership approaches that central and site-level administrators use to enhance teachers' collective efficacy and student assessment capabilities.
